THE NEW MANAGEMENT

We are informed that Premier Hearst is prepared to hand in his resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor at any moment, only waiting to hear from Mr. Drury when he will be able to form a new Government, when it is understood that Sir John Hendrie will send him. Mr. Drury should lose no time in letting it be known that he has the members of his Cabinet picked out and can move into the offices of the present Government at any time. There are some things that will need consideration in connection with the formation of this Cabinet. The Ministers will have to go back to their constituents for re-election so as to obtain the approval of their constituents to their becoming members of the Government. This is a custom in all British countries. Some of them may have difficulty in being re-elected. We imagine that Mr. Rollo, who is stated for the Labor portfolio, will be re-elected by acclamation when he again asks West Hamilton electors for their endorsement. Mr. Drury himself has to find a seat.

The United Farmer-Labor Government may have their platform all cut and dried, but there are many things of a administrative and practical nature that will likely be forced upon their attention by the Liberal leader. Mr. Dewart has made many charges against the Hearst Government, charges that will have to be investigated if the public is to be satisfied. The Flavelle gang will either have to be investigated or dismissed from office. The O. T. C. will have to be strengthened and the laws stopped, and in this way it has been enforced and investigation. While magistrates have no option in the matter of fines, it is well known that those who were fined and had influence with the Government could have these remitted or reduced by it, thus making the Act a vote-giver for the Government. There is also the mismanagement of the public funds. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent building useless roads and bridges. The election frauds will also have to be cleared up. It will be the duty of the Government to probe those and other matters.

Some "pep" will have to be injected into the Attorney-General's Department, and whoever is to be the new Provincial Treasurer should be sure that the financial side of the Province are put upon a business-like basis, and that the public statement of the department be made with a view to give the people a correct idea of the financial standing of the Province, and not present a statement the object of which would be to give the public believe that black is white because of political exigencies. No such exigency exists as far as the new Government is concerned, and we trust that it will start off by giving the people a financial statement that will show the real standing of the Province financially.

Dr. Cough has announced that he will not continue in office as Minister of Education. Whether or not he will resign his seat is not known.

THE THREATENED COAL STRIKE

President Wilson and his Administration seem to have decided that the people will not be deprived of their supply of coal if the half million miners who are on strike to-morrow, or the coal is in transit on their lines, and they have fixed the price of all grades of coal, so that the operators cannot hope to bleed the public by raising the prices on account of the strike.

The more widespread influence there is to come to terms with the miners. The President has also made it clear that the authorities will see to it that those who work in the mines during the strike will be protected. State and city police will be directed to the danger zones, and sailors and marines will, if necessary, be brought ashore to preserve order. All the miners have been given a provisional pension, $60 a month, of veterans have been given the five mills of Virginia.

In spite of all those preparations the miners are evidently determined to go on strike to-morrow. John L. Lewis, acting President of the United Mine Workers, has sent a lengthy telegram to President Wilson in which he says:

"Please let me know at the earliest opportunity when you will issue the order for a general strike and when the miners will be brought into line."

President Wilson may be a stick man, but he is not too sick to use the big stick on the miners.

Big-General Ross is another man who has got his Cabinet position knocked from under him.

He is a stick man, but he is not too sick to use the big stick on the miners.

Satisfaction is all you can get out of anything and Klein & Binkley Diamonds do, we know, exceed the fondest expectations. They grow in value by the inevitable comparison.

Then, too, because every Diamond whether large or small is and has been of the same unvarying quality, Klein & Binkley Diamonds, with our established reputation, gives a "Klein & Binkley" Diamond a quality prestige seldom obtained elsewhere.

You certainly owe it to yourself to see what we have to offer, before deciding to purchase elsewhere. Come in.

PUT CANADA IN A HIGH PLACE IN FINANCE

Her Prosperity Due to Development of Her Own Resources.

SIR THOMAS WHITE

Former Dominion Minister of Finance Spoke for Victory Loan.

"Last year, because the American market was closed to us, we were forced to fall back upon our own resources. Consequently we developed to such an extent that, in October, enough money in this country available to finance our own end of it. Prosperity was the result, and, probably, the most important factor in the peace campaign. The war with so many countries in it, and the action of Canada is considered one of the most amazing feats of war finance."

Then spoke Sir Thomas White, ex-Dominion Minister of Finance, at a largely attended mass meeting for the Victory Loan held last night at the Victoria Hall, with more than a hundred persons present. Geo. C. Coppley presided, and Sir Thomas' excellent speech, which enjoyed a standing ovation, was well received. He paid a tribute to the manner in which the work was being carried on.

CAPT. J. P. CAMERON.

"I think that at this time there comes a great challenge to the people of Canada in the shape of the new loan. I hope that all the men who sleep forever with the stars to-night," said Capt. (Rev.) W. G. Cameron, of Bala, of the Bala Church. "To-night who was the second speaker. He made a very strong and eloquent appeal, speaking from his personal knowledge and stories culled from his experiences among the men at the front."

The Rev. J. P. Bell, manager of the Bank of Hamilton, also spoke at the meeting, and the speaker thanked the speakers, at the same time announcing that the banks were planning to increase their contributions towards the preparation of the loan by making loans to persons whose credit would guarantee it. He paid a splendid tribute to the bonds, providing security in the way of provision for repayment within a year was made. This was greeted with a standing ovation.

Controller H. J. Halford, prominent local Labor man, who seconded the motion, said that the workers would say "Yes" to the loan, and paid high tribute to the local record of former loans.

In opening, Sir Thomas spoke of feeling that the Dominion was his native city, having been from so near the time of his birth.

He paid a splendid tribute to the program, and said that the people in former years, hoping that it would be kept up.

His purpose was to talk upon the Loan, he said. These campaigns, although publicly, but three weeks in length, are really mighty, courageous, and inspiring. Great work can be done by all the workers and it takes splendid men to do it. I feel that it was necessary to speak to-night, and here to-night," he continued. "For I feel that Hamilton can go over the top without any word from me, but I could not help but speak to-night, for I saw your Prince of Wales flag floating over your city hall even now, just before I left."

Optimism and being an optimist were merely being Canadian, the speaker said. Canada had not failed to meet the trials and difficulties experienced of the war and floating no less than five Victory Loans, he received a standing ovation. The speaker found that the keynote of Canadian work was optimism.

The first loan of 1915 was put out at 5 per cent, and trembling. No loan of that size had ever been thought of in Canada before. We were not sure that the loan would come across.

The response that year and each consecutive year was such that we found our confidence in the loan increased. In general, I always give Canadians credit for that. I said to them at the time you were here, "I am glad and I'll give you the credit. The last I said the speaker said laugher.

The Victory Loan was commented upon by Sir Thomas as being the greatest invention of organization for the painless extraction of money from people, and the most effective claim with just pride from the result of our campaign that the achievement of the war in Canada, in relative comparison to all the countries and all that of United States, and the other countries, were the highest in the realm of finance. (Applause).

The work of the Victory Loan organization was very difficult. Least, months of hard work, night and day. But it can eventually mean one thing.

The success of the former loans was attributed to the fact that in issuing these bonds, Canada never asked compensation for the 5 per cent interest which appeared as "read rate" to some. "It is because Canada met these conditions that her bond market stand in the world," he said. "Last year the American market was closed and we were limited more or less to our own resources. The loan in the country increased as a result of it, and to-day, there is more money in the country available than last year. The problem is how to get hold of it."

Had Canada borrowed the money from the U. S. or England, when it was time to get it back, the lending problem would have been very serious. "We would have been obliged through several generations to pay a high interest rate, which the loan, had that policy been followed rather than putting in use our own resources," declared Thomas.

Then, in a speech, he said, "We produced and conserves and without these loans, which would not have had the possibility which carried us through the last years of the war."

The prosperity of Canada with the loan, he said, was the envy of the world. The results of these loans made through the policy of production and conservation, taught us to live within our foreign markets, and the Canadian credit was unlimited."

"At the close of the war, Canada's position in the world of finance and business was second only to United States, and the United States was in the lead, but must remember. How many bonds were the only ones of any significance national standing above par at the time the armistice was signed?" (Applause).

"One of the greatest advantages of the war bonds is that a million or two people, who were not thinking little or nothing about investment are now happy shareholders in the Dominion, and, the speaker said.

The total grain crop—$15,000,000—Sir Thomas pointed out. Vital statistics of the country, which, he said, tided over through the application of these monies."

"Canada has a temporary undebtedness of $100,000,000, which we hope will be liquidated out of this loan. Which will be a continuous source of revenue for the country, which carried us through the war. There are many more to be brought home, and the country must all be paid, although the money is paid and from the last time it is not yet exhausted. There is a Canadian winter ahead of us. I would like to see through it safely. War finance will have to be continued as they have since the end of the war."

"We need a change, morally, physically, and economically. Let us return to the simple life. Let us return to the simple life. It is a matter of good business to recognize the value of good business to the people of Canada. We never get another chance at this time."

Mr. Cameron, in conclusion, amid enthusiastic applause, said: "I am a Dominion Victoria Bonds at 5% per cent."

"There was no need for me to come up to Hamilton to tell it. It was a matter of art of courtesy to the ex-Minister of Finance. The only thing I could do was to predict the result, which I did, and it has been by the end of the next two weeks."

The Rev. J. P. Bell, manager of the Bank of Hamilton, also spoke at the meeting, and the speaker thanked the speakers, at the same time announcing that the banks were planning to increase their contributions towards the preparation of the loan by making loans to persons whose credit would guarantee it. He paid a splendid tribute to the bonds, providing security in the way of provision for repayment within a year was made. This was greeted with a standing ovation.

Controller H. J. Halford, prominent local Labor man, who seconded the motion, said that the workers would say "Yes" to the loan, and paid high tribute to the local record of former loans.

In opening, Sir Thomas spoke of feeling that the Dominion was his native city, having been from so near the time of his birth.

He paid a splendid tribute to the program, and said that the people in former years, hoping that it would be kept up.

His purpose was to talk upon the Loan, he said. These campaigns, although publicly, but three weeks in length, are really mighty, courageous, and inspiring. Great work can be done by all the workers and it takes splendid men to do it. I feel that it was necessary to speak to-night, and here to-night," he continued. "For I feel that Hamilton can go over the top without any word from me, but I could not help but speak to-night, for I saw your Prince of Wales flag floating over your city hall even now, just before I left."

Optimism and being an optimist were merely being Canadian, the speaker said. Canada had not failed to meet the trials and difficulties experienced of the war and floating no less than five Victory Loans, he received a standing ovation. The speaker found that the keynote of Canadian work was optimism.

The first loan of 1915 was put out at 5 per cent, and trembling. No loan of that size had ever been thought of in Canada before. We were not sure that the loan would come across.

The response that year and each consecutive year was such that we found our confidence in the loan increased. In general, I always give Canadians credit for that. I said to them at the time you were here, "I am glad and I'll give you the credit. The last I said the speaker said laugher.

The Victory Loan was commented upon by Sir Thomas as being the greatest invention of organization for the painless extraction of money from people, and the most effective claim with just pride from the result of our campaign that the achievement of the war in Canada, in relative comparison to all the countries and all that of United States, and the other countries, were the highest in the realm of finance. (Applause).

The work of the Victory Loan organization was very difficult. Least, months of hard work, night and day. But it can eventually mean one thing.

The success of the former loans was attributed to the fact that in issuing these bonds, Canada never asked compensation for the 5 per cent interest which appeared as "read rate" to some. "It is because Canada met these conditions that her bond market stand in the world," he said. "Last year the American market was closed and we were limited more or less to our own resources. The loan in the country increased as a result of it, and to-day, there is more money in the country available than last year. The problem is how to get hold of it."

Had Canada borrowed the money from the U. S. or England, when it was time to get it back, the lending problem would have been very serious. "We would have been obliged through several generations to pay a high interest rate, which the loan, had that policy been followed rather than putting in use our own resources," declared Thomas.

Then, in a speech, he said, "We produced and conserves and without these loans, which would not have had the possibility which carried us through the last years of the war."

The prosperity of Canada with the loan, he said, was the envy of the world. The results of these loans made through the policy of production and conservation, taught us to live within our foreign markets, and the Canadian credit was unlimited."

"At the close of the war, Canada's position in the world of finance and business was second only to United States, and the United States was in the lead, but must remember. How many bonds were the only ones of any significance national standing above par at the time the armistice was signed?" (Applause).

"One of the greatest advantages of the war bonds is that a million or two people, who were not thinking little or nothing about investment are now happy shareholders in the Dominion, and, the speaker said.

The total grain crop—$15,000,000—Sir Thomas pointed out. Vital statistics of the country, which, he said, tided over through the application of these monies."

"Canada has a temporary undebtedness of $100,000,000, which we hope will be liquidated out of this loan. Which will be a continuous source of revenue for the country, which carried us through the war. There are many more to be brought home, and the country must all be paid, although the money is paid and from the last time it is not yet exhausted. There is

STUDYING WASPS.

—Contrasting Colors Said to Attract Them.

Some interesting investigations made by an English scientist, Dr. Harold Wager, into the color sense of insects, described in the London Times as follows:

"Dr. Wager made his experiments by exposing wasps to colored paper, and then watching to see whether they were attracted or repelled by the colors.

"He found that the wasps were attracted by red, orange, yellow, and green, and repelled by blue, purple, and violet.

Mrs. John McKenney has been visiting friends in Jarvis.

Mrs. Letta Perry is visiting her parents in Round Point.

The monthly meeting of the Elfrida Ladies' Aid will be held at the home of Mrs. Sam Quance, 9th 4th.

There will be a dance for all returned soldiers and lady friends tonight in the R. C. Hotel, 24 James street north at 8:30.

Mrs. Grace Sweeney, 75, Catherine street north, entertained the girls of the Chesa-Wagg Fancy Work Club on Wednesday evening. Mrs. C. Bulbrook and Mrs. Eva Heron presented selections on the piano, and Misses Estelle and Helen were appreciated. Luncheon was served, and the happy girls departed for their homes pleased with their evening's work.

HELD AFTERNOON TEA

Although the weather was anything but favorable, there was a very good crowd at the afternoon tea given by the W.M.F. of Knox Church at the home of Mrs. John S. MacEachern, 117 Balsam Avenue, yesterday, and it proved a highly enjoyable affair. Excellent tea and refreshments were provided by Mrs. Jennie Harvey and the Misses Watson, and a reading by Miss Effie McKenzie. Tea was served and a social time was had by all.

PETTERSON-HOLTON NUPHTIALS

The relatives and immediate friends of the Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holton, who were privileged to witness the marriage of their daughter, Miss Holton, to Mr. George S. Peterson, of San Francisco, Cal., in Central Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon, were greatly impressed with the formal dignity and solemnity of the ceremony.

The brief service was impressive. The organist, Mr. F. W. O'Farrell, skillfully the musical intermission, and the musical setting and the echo organ reverberated with delightful effect as an accompaniment to the singing.

The bride, a young girl of sixteen, was a picture of beauty. Her father, Mr. George Allan, baritone soloist of the church, sang very effectively "O Fair, O Sweet and Holy" and "The Lord is Good."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holton, 50 Robert Street, and many congratulations were expressed by the bride and groom. Dainty refreshments were served, and the guests enjoyed the music of the Lomas orchestra.

Light music by the Lomas orchestra was much enjoyed. The spacious dining-room presented a very attractive view, with the wedding cake as a central motif. The health of the fair bride was pronounced by Dr. George Allan, and the bride and groom exchanged a hearty speech, and the reception was made by the group.

The bridegroom had an able sponsor in Mr. Balmer, attorney. The bride and groom, and the guests, all the married and the single, were served.

A dainty refreshment was served, and the music followed by the father of the bride, Mr. W. A. Holton, who spoke in appropriate words. The bride, Mr. George Allan, in reference to Mrs. Holton and the bride, and Mr. Chapman, an honored member of the church, in a speech, said: "The bride was made by the group."

THE HAUNTED HOUSE

(By Carroll O'Donnell)

To-night is Hallowe'en
And the little village folk make merry.
Bright-eyed they are and red of cheek;
As to and fro they hurry.

The haunted house across the street.

To-night will ring and echo
With childlike voice and the trip of tiny feet.

And as I sit here in the dusky light,
Watching their play.

Myriad shadows of yesterday descend from out the night,
And phantoms fill the house across the way.

The moonlight floods across the creaking door.

And soft envelops the youthful figures dancing.
Stately; gracefully and slow;

Soft eyes smiling into darker ones,

As they glide to and fro.

And sweetest strains of music float to me,

Faintly thro' the night.

The violin I loved.

I wonder if I might just try one step or two.

So light I used to tread the dance,

And oh, 'twas many the merry glance

I cast behind me as about the room I sped.

The glass to-night shows not my wrinkled face and faded hair,

The glass to-night is see is very fair.

Then visions of a wondrous feast I view,

The rarest wine and choicest fruit the country grows.

The table brightly colored with the hues of Hallowe'en.

A sight to tempt the languished appetite

Of Royal King or Queen.

A laugh, a jest, a merry jest,

Starts back from Yesterday.

When all was light and happiness,

In the old house across the way.

To-night is Hallowe'en,

And the little village folk that play.

Are filled with joyous and mirthful merriment.

As they explore the haunted house across the way.

Oh night of Witch and Magic Broom and spectral scene,

They cannot know the visions you and I have seen.

To-night is Hallowe'en
And merry Youth is bold,
To-night is Hallowe'en,
And I am old.

SENATE CAUCUS

THIS INDUSTRY IS DESIRABLE IN EVERY WAY

Firestone Will Not Bring
Anything That is Objectionable.

HIGHEST IDEALS

Prevail in Everything Connected With This Great Business.

Some industries are more desirable in a community than others, even though all have a legitimate place in the world of manufacture and commerce. For instance, a fertilizing plant would not be so welcome as a flower nursery, and that is where the Firestone Rubber Company satisfies all demands. It ranks Class A. in desirability. This is due, first of all, to the high ideals, integrity, and soundness to all that the simple word "efficiency" means.

There are no features even suggesting the possibility of a fire at Firestone. The buildings will be the latest word in factory construction, attractive, spacious, light and airy, with particular attention to the upkeep of the grounds and contiguous territory. It might be thought that a plant where so much is handled in such enormous quantities some small must necessarily be distributed, but such is not the case. The processes are taken care of that the processes used absolutely doordize anything objectionable.

But, perhaps above all, the Firestone plant will be welcomed here for what the name means as a relation between employer and employee. Firestone places a high value on its product. He explains that his guarantee, it means to tire and his other products, is that after the plant is built, the firm has successfully developed the true co-operative spirit, and Mr. Firestone has solved the problem of how to keep the employees interested and happy. He has always been a believer in employee stockholding, and for this as well as other stock to them. This practice was continued and developed until in 1917, under a deferred payment plan, 900 employees had purchased stock to the value of $3,000,000. Eighty-nine per cent. of the 10,000 employees worked at the plant, practically the whole home office force of 1,000, and eighty-four per cent. of the 10,000 employees had stock.

Another feature that has been featured for the protection of the employees is that of insurance. The company has a special employee insurance department for the benefit of its workers. The plan provides that the company will pay the premium of $100 to each employee the following sum: If such employee has been in the company's service more than one year and one month, $100 per month. This amount is increased by $100 for each year the employee has worked until the amount of $1,000 per month. The company will also levy any assessment or receive contributions, or make deductions from the wages of its employees to pay the expenses of the insurance department. It is absolutely free to every man and woman that the company employs. Mr. Firestone will bring with him a Canadian organization, which will be the Canadian branch of the Firestone Company, to take hold and develop this into an industry as huge as the present plant at Akron, and with it will come a large number of Canadian and that can be done.

Here are some of the reasons for supporting the by-laws to be voted on next Monday:

SENATE CAUCUS

Senator Staunton May Of

PARLIAMENT BACKS PLAN OF LLOYD GEORGE

Financial Policy Gets Overwhelming Majority of 405 to 50.

CAN'T POLICE WORLD

Premier Defends Britain's Course in Leaving Armenia.

London, Oct. 30.—The Government secured a vote of confidence on the House of Commons to-night on an overwhelming majority of 320.

An amendment to the Government's financial resolution proposed by John R. Clynes, M.P., and former Food Controller, was rejected, 405 to 50, and the Government's resolution was passed.

This resolution, which was drafted at a Cabinet meeting of Monday, charged the Government with failing to realize the serious effects upon the trade and industry of the nation of the enormous financial burdens resulting from the war.

Mr. Robert, however, said the nation was to find itself able to increase the output and really return to a satisfactory industrial condition. It was the demands of the workmen to be raised to the status of partners.

Prime Minister Lloyd George, dealing with the world wide responsibilities of the Government said:

"We left Armenia because we wanted to help Armenia, but cannot really police the world. He thought that there were other powers that might take their share."

Along with the other charges against the Government of avoidable extravagance, the Premier emphasized the lack of appreciation of the need for economy and suggested remedial measures.

It had been further shown, he said, that the sort of "expansion" of the country's arms, could find no echo in a country's assembly like the House of Commons.

Lloyd George said he had tried to discuss the situation in order to destroy the country's credit. It was necessary, he added, to have a certain amount of credit, but it was better to have a smaller amount than to have a larger one.

Increased production, the Premier concluded, was the truest economy and the only remedy for the depreciation of the pound abroad, which was natural, he said, in the last year.

He appreciated economy on the social services, like education and national health, which he declared would be folly.

Although the Minister's speech had been well received, it was not the real estimate presented by Austin Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and practically no plans had been outlined for a settlement of the Cyprus amendment calling for a levy upon capital and the reversion to the State of fortifications.

After the debate, the Minister's motion was put from the chair, although the Labour party had voted against it, and did not persist, and the motion was put without division, amid loud cheer and ironical laughter.

Nothing was indicated during the course of the debate concerning the nature of the proposal, but the debate did not mention the Government's motion, and the Ministerial speech seemed to show that the Government is relying on the general principles of international commerce as the chief means of meeting the financial demands. Hence the expression used by Mr. Clynes, that the party "do nothing to injure the country's credit abroad."

After the Prime Minister had spoken, Mr. Austin Chamberlain, in a debate, John Lodge, Labourite, likened the Premier's speech as an illustration of his party's performance. Much criticism came from the Labour benches.

Under the Bonar Law, who replied for the Government, described the debate as the most amateurish he had ever listened to. He said that all the clutter was due to the fact that all the clamor was due to forgetfulness of the fact that there had been a war, and the abundant ammunition which had been a year past. He pointed to the enormous debt from foreign countries and the dominions, as well as the fact that he believed that even Russia was a bad debt. Mr. Bonar Law completely agreed with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the amendment was rejected, though he admitted that much might be said for a levy on war profits. He announced that the party would not be in a position to appoint a select committee to examine the question. He also deprecated doing anything to create the impression that capital was safe.

Mr. Clynes, speaking on his amendment, congratulated Austin Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, on "the most skillful speech he had ever delivered in the House of Commons," but declared that the party's policy did not call for any policy. The Labor party, said Mr. Clynes, contended that the financial situation was so seriously affected that it called for extraordinary measures.

Mr. Clynes condemned the system of unemployment doles and subsidies, but argued that it could be fully eliminated by the new budget.
